

If so, cracking your knuckles refers to the popping sound that occurs when you flex or bend your fingers, typically at the knuckle joints. The sound is often attributed to the release of gas bubbles in the synovial fluid within the joint.